Foundations

A lot has happened on the homeschool front over the last 35 years. Some of it has been great but some has not. The Jan/Feb 2013 issue will be dedicated to discovering what is best for homeschoolers and what would be best avoided. We need to hear from you. Ask us questions. And if you are a homeschooler and have some wisdom or good ideas, please pass them on. You can email your feedback to us at ngj@nogreaterjoy.org

Daddy's Pride and Joy

By Shalom (Pearl) Brand

Make sure your kids know that you are proud of them in the little things, so they will want to make you proud in the big things.

When I was a little girl, I loved to be my daddy's "pride and joy." I remember Shoshanna and me calling Daddy to come and watch us ride our horses, see the play house we built, or watch us swing on a rope or vine. The best part of being his pride and joy was when we came into the house and Dad bragged on us to Mom. We always knew he was glad that he was

OUR daddy, and we knew he would not be as happy if we were not there to show him all of our great tricks.

I am now a mother of four, and I see my own children being their daddy's pride and joy. Just a few days ago, Daddy came home from work and the girls asked him if he would go to the creek with them and see what they could do. Even though it was fall, the evening was warm. It was almost dark as we all tromped off down the lane toward the swimming hole. Gracie, my seven-year-old, rode her 90cc Yamaha. Laila, the five-year-old, got the courage to ride her big sister's bike so Daddy could see that she could ride a big bike. Parker, our two-year-old, kept up a steady trot, running barefoot on the gravel. He stopped occasionally to pick up rocks but never stopped talking. I carried sleeping Roland in my arms. As we strolled, I thought, "Life doesn't get much better than this."

Gracie, being on a dirt bike, got to the creek before we did, so she made a big loop around the tree line before coming back toward us. That was when she ran over a small log, which made her struggle to maintain control of the bike. She succeeded in staying upright and continued to where we were. Her voice was shaky as she told her daddy what happened; she was trying hard not to cry. Seeing her distress, Daddy knew just what to do. He started praising her for not giving up and staying on her bike, continuing to ride to where we were. I reinforced what he was saying by telling her that she would be a stronger person because of that log in her way.

*As we strolled, I thought,
"Life doesn't get much better than this."*

When we got to the swimming hole, the children all shouted, "Let's go swimming!" Soon the girls and Parker were each yelling louder and louder to get their daddy to see what they could do. Laila was swinging and dropping into the deep water, then swimming out again. Gracie wanted to show him how she could swing one-armed and do tricks on the rope. Parker, not wanting to be outdone by the girls, was swinging out over the creek and pulling his legs up and over his head, swinging upside down. Then he smiled with delight as his daddy clapped in praise. It was heavenly fun.

The sunlight that had been over the water began to disappear, so we knew our playtime was over. Gracie and Laila climbed back on their bikes, still dripping and chilled. Gracie laughingly said that her riding boots were filling with water from her dripping shorts but it would not slow her down. As Justin and I walked into the tree-covered, shadowed lane, we were amazed that our wet little girls could jump on bikes and ride for home. I do not think I would even be that brave today! I know that being their daddy's pride and joy, they have the courage and confidence to try new things. Even if at times it is a little hard and a log gets in the way and it is not all smooth going, they will see it as a chance to become a stronger individual. This evening's adventure will not soon be forgotten. As the winter approaches, the children will look longingly at the creek and talk of what daring feats they will accomplish next summer when they will REALLY show Daddy how high they can swing.

I have seen adults who are afraid to step out, afraid to fail, so they do not even try. They were never someone's pride and joy. Make sure your kids know that you are proud of them, even in the little things, so they will want to make you proud in the big things. Even now if you were to come by my parents' home, you might find any one of us five kids telling Big Papa (Dad) something we have accomplished. You know from reading his writing over the years that he still brags on us even though we are all grown with children of our own. It's my delight to pass his wonderful pride and joy secret to my children and, hopefully, now to yours. ~ Shalom *

I know that being their daddy's pride and joy, they have the courage and confidence to try new things.

Go, and Sneer No More

By Debi Pearl

How can a man truly love a woman who treats him with disdain and disapproval? The recipe for a good marriage doesn't include a pinch of scorn.

Over the last 40-plus years, we have watched couples fall in—and out—of love. In many cases, the ones we were certain would make it did not, and those we thought would surely end in divorce thrived in love. So what's the secret? There are many dynamics in marriage that make it fail or flourish, but over the years there is one underlying element that has proven to be the deal maker or breaker. I don't know if it is the cause or the symptom, but it is a certain marker...sitting in the seat of the scornful.

A family full of scorn is a family headed for ruin, for scorn is the soul in decay. It is finding fault and deriding the failures of others while believing oneself to be somewhat better.

The family piles into the family van to head home from church, and within seconds Mom speaks. “God help us, Mrs. Don’s makeup is so brazen it’s embarrassing.” The children register their mom’s remark while their minds take them back two minutes to when Mom stood by the van laughing and talking with Mrs. Don as if they were best friends. Mrs. Don has often entertained the children and done other nice things for their family, but...

Dad interrupts, “That d@# preacher needs to learn to tell time. The deacons have warned him several times, but he doesn’t know when to shut up.” The kids see their mother’s instant disapproval for Daddy using the D-word. They know that mama reeeally likes the preacher because she calls him every time Daddy does something bad. Something uglier than damn has taken hold of the children—it is called disrespect. And the disrespect in the children’s souls is not confined to the preacher or Mrs. Don; it is becoming a part of their worldview, and it will be directed toward the parents soon enough. Mom thinks her glance of condemnation will clear the air, but instead it further tears down the family. The next time she seeks the preacher’s advice, the children will sneer.

Teenage sister is giggling with brother, “Did you see those geeky shoes Sara had on? Man, I would die before I would walk around looking like that. She is such a dork.” Sara is sister’s best friend, or at least she used to be.

All that church-going homeschooling parents try to pour into their children will be canceled out with this one bad habit of scorning.

“Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful” (Psalm 1:1). Note the digression from walking to standing to sitting. The practice of scorning quickly becomes a permanent post.

As a general rule, the disease of scorning is most prominent in Christians who deem themselves most separate in doctrine and righteousness. Just as none are so obnoxious about diet as the health-food nuts, none are so obnoxious about lifestyle as fundamentalist Bible-believers and elitist homeschoolers who deem themselves above common practitioners. This is bad because being scornful has a huge negative impact throughout life. All that church-going homeschooling parents try to pour into their children will be cancelled out with this one bad habit of scorning.

Children who grow up in a family where scorning is common will be molded into a worldview that will shape their choice of spouse, the way they relate in marriage, and the way they raise their children. A young girl who grows up hearing scorning will become a scorning wife. The first time her husband is a jerk—and he will be—she will resort to the lower instincts she has learned and scorn instead of pray and forgive. Her new husband will experience scorn instead of biblically mandated reverence. The equation reads like this: Her scorn = his lack of love. When they come for counsel, she will demand that he love her as Christ loved the church, and he will sheepishly tell us it is hard to love her, and we will know why. How can a man truly love a woman who treats him with disdain and disapproval? The recipe for a good marriage doesn't include a pinch of scorn.

But the husband may have come from a scorning family, so he will have scorned her family before they were married, which makes her feel justified in her contempt toward her husband. This equation reads like this: disrespect breeds disrespect, or scorn brings on deeper scorn. And like Thanksgiving turkey, it becomes a family tradition.

One reason scorn, and thus divorce, has skyrocketed is the diminishing of community. People once lived and died around the same group of friends and family. People had to learn to treat their lifetime neighbors with some degree of respect. When you knew a girl might grow up and bear your grandkids, you learned to hold your ridicule if she appeared to be a little dumb. If you thought a boy could grow up and marry your daughter, you didn't want him labeled too poorly. In that era, self-preservation depended upon the advancement of everyone within the circle. Everybody in the community was important to the community as a whole, and faults were better tolerated for the well-being of all.

*Blessed is the family...
that sitteth not in the seat of the scornful.*

As a child, I knew of a family that had six daughters. The only thing I can remember about this highly intelligent, correctly religious, successful pastor's family was the constant run of ridicule that prevailed in his household, usually directed toward a church member for being stupid, ugly, or messy. The pretty girls all married, divorced, remarried, and divorced again. Pastor Dad finally got involved in an affair, bringing his marriage to an end as well. Blessed is the family...that sitteth not in the seat of the scornful.

Many of you reading this were raised around a table of scorn. You will most likely marry spouses from families that nit-picked their church members as they drove away from church each week. Or perhaps it was the previous church that they carefully dismembered. The infectious disease of mockery takes its toll. Usually the ridicule will not be harsh and is not meant to be cruel; it takes the form of offhanded remarks said in order to disparage the other. Perhaps the most damaging type of denigration for a child is when he thinks that his parents truly like and respect someone, and then as soon as they get in the car he hears the parents' disdain for that person.

Raining down dishonor on the teacher or preacher who is teaching the child the Bible will cause the child to lose his reverence for God and will surely lead to the child's rejection of God. It doesn't matter if the preacher deserves the reviling; is the venting worth the damage done in the heart of your child who heard you give your "spiritual" opinion? This two-faced diet breeds more of the same. Critical spirits don't have just one home; they migrate and multiply like seed ticks. Wife against husband, husband against wife, and then children against parents; and when sin is conceived, it will keep your teenager from ever developing a healthy fear of God. Without fear of God there will be no wisdom. Fools—that's what you will be raising. "How long, ye simple ones, will ye love simplicity? and the scorners delight in their scorning, and fools hate knowledge?" (Proverbs 1:22). So in the end, you might save your marriage if you happen to have married someone who doesn't equal you in sneering, but unless someone else intervenes, your children will bear your sin and pass it on to your grandchildren.

The moral of the story: Go, and sneer no more. ~ Debi *

Jingle Bells

By Shalom Brand

D Did you know that there are around 925 million people going hungry worldwide? There are millions of children who are so hungry they cannot even walk and their hair will not grow. In spite of their hunger, many of these people would give you all they had to eat if you came to visit. They would smile at you with a toothless smile and thank you for coming.

Do you sometimes complain to your mom about the food she wants you to eat? Are you sometimes not thankful? We are all unthankful at times. As a reminder, make a jingle bell and hang it where you can see it every day. Every time you want to complain, it will remind you that there are children in the world who do not have any food. They would cry with delight to be eating anything your mom served them. Don't forget to pray for these children and the people who are helping them. ~ Shalom *

Preparing To Be A Help Meet .com

By Shalom (Pearl) Brand

This is from the Preparing blog site. The girls are discussing Shalom's article in the Sept/Oct 2012 NGJ magazine, "Where Are the Men?" It caused quite a stir.

From a writer on the blog:

We just got the Sept/Oct NGJ today. My interest was definitely piqued when I read Shalom's article. I really did not know what things were like outside of my (rural farming) area. It's frightening to hear that it is somewhat the same in other places... I know of so many WONDERFUL Christian young ladies in their late 20s who are still waiting for their man to come along, and it makes me think—if these amazing girls are not married, then how would I ever have a chance at finding a husband? I have to say, reading the article was very depressing, mostly because it corroborated what I've already seen and didn't want to admit.

I got to thinking—is there any way that we gals can help to remedy this situation? I know that the most important thing is prayer; we must pray for godly men to be raised up, young men who are ready to raise a family. But what else could we do?

I also was thinking perhaps I am too picky. Could that be part of the problem? Am I expecting these young men to be spiritual giants while I excuse my own faults?

Another thing—if there are no mature young men around us, should we gals then settle for someone we think would be less than ideal? (I'm talking about rational concerns now, not just girlish whims.)

I really want to be married someday... I mean REALLY. It is depressing then when I survey this state of affairs! I'm sure most of you girls know how I feel! It is even harder in my area, because there really are not that many men period, let alone "marriage material" guys! (I guess that's why I should be going to the Texas Shindig!)

From Shalom:

Hi, girls, I think I need to expand or explain my article "Where Are the Men?" since so many are talking about it on the blog. (By the way, the Preparing blog site will be down for a few weeks while it is being revamped so that married ladies can write on one site and single girls on another.)

Anyway, back to the article I wrote. I knew I needed to say something, but I didn't get my message across completely. I just see so many girls waiting around for Mr. Right, and that is not what God has called young ladies to do. 1 Corinthians 7:34 says, "There is difference also between a wife and a virgin. The unmarried woman careth for the things of the Lord, that she may be holy both in body and in spirit: but she that is married careth for the things of the world, how she may please her husband." Yes! God created us to be a help meet to our own husbands, but he also wants those that are unmarried to be actively serving him. Notice he says, “The unmarried woman careth for the things of the Lord.” Just as the married woman cares for her husband (thinks about what he wants, serves him), the unmarried woman cares for the things of the Lord—thinks about what He wants, and serves Him. Neither instance of caring is a passive, sit-around-the-house-and-contemplate sort of thing. Both types of women are actively working and serving the one whom they care for. Most of the girls I know care more about getting married than they do about serving God.

You said, “maybe I am too picky.” I do believe that is true at times, but we all want the best God has for us (check out the “Small Flame” video <http://ngj.me/sfvid>). My dad writes in the booklet, To Betroth or Not to Betroth, “A person that lives his life by his own best devices and does not get daily guidance from God has no right to expect anything special when it comes to marriage.” If we are not obeying Scripture and actively caring for the things of the Lord, then how do we expect to meet that special man that God has for us?

I heard a story last week about a girl who was in Africa ministering. There were only native people around. She was where God wanted her, and do you know what? A fine Christian man came there to minister, not knowing that she was also there, and they soon married. I heard another story not long ago of a young girl who went to work in an orphanage in Mexico and was there for several years with no prospects of marriage. But a young man came to work there, and they were soon married. I believe these ladies are getting God’s best, don’t you?

You asked, “What else could we do?” I do think we can do something about the lack of God-fearing men out there. In chapter one of Preparing to Be His Help Meet, Mom (Debi Pearl) wrote about praying—not for you to find a husband, but that God would raise up men to serve him. I know several young men who would make wonderful fathers and great husbands, and who are very hard working, but they are not saved. These men are just good guys, raised by good, hard-working, country parents, but the young men do not know the Lord. There are lots of good guys out there who were not raised in a God-fearing home, but if they were to get saved, they would make a difference in this world.

So I want you girls to do two things: (1) Start caring for the things of the Lord, and (2) start praying that God will work in the hearts of young men around the world. If you want to be inspired by a young lady’s walk in serving the Lord, google “Kisses from Katie.” — Shalom ✨

From the Mailbox

Dear Debi Pearl,

Thank you for writing the article "Count Your Blessings." You did the very thing written in Psalm 40, verses 9 and 10. (For the first time in my life, I am reading and enjoying Psalms!)

The article was an answer to my recent prayer; I feel like I have discovered an enormous treasure.

I made a copy of your article and left it on the desk of my 86-year-old mother, and the change in her has been remarkable. I wish for my children's sake I would have understood this 20 years ago. Still, I am thrilled to be starting NOW.

Thank you for sharing this treasure with me and anyone else going through life without understanding God's instructions concerning thankfulness and the uncountable blessings that come from being thankful. I needed to have it explained to me, and I thank magnificent God for this gift.

With respect and gratitude,
Your Appreciative Reader

Seeing Through a Glass Darkly

By Debi Pearl

Occasionally we feel led to re-run an article — this was a definite nudge. Reprinted from June/July 1998 issue.

*Eternity is so eternal, so terribly final, so completely forever. Death is not final.
By the grace of God, it is not without hope.*

Twenty-two years ago a wonderful, sweet, darling two-year-old boy, whom I loved, came down with a fever. Within 24 hours he was dead.

During the days after his death, while the family grieved, I kept his baby brother. I remember staring at my sweet Rebekah and feeling a sense of relief that it was not she who was taken.

“When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things.” What I am about to say will be hard for many of you to understand, but as an older woman I feel compelled to speak.

Death is not the worst enemy. When I was a young mother, this truth was simply beyond comprehension. To lose a child was my worst fear. I avoided long bridges because I was afraid I could not save all my children if the car plunged into the water. I carefully chose cars by the ease of opening the safety buckles and doors—just in case. I studied medications, familiarizing myself with potential problems and learning how to use alternative medicines. My natural instinct to protect my children, regardless of the cost, was in full operation. God gave me that instinct. Along the way, other children whom I knew died, and I continued to cling to my children, trying to guard their safety. Yet how frail my efforts would have been if death had come calling.

Life is still precious. Death is still the enemy. I continue to cling to life, not only my own, but to that of those I love. Yet, my clinging has changed.

When you are young and raising a family, death seems to be the ultimate loss. The grief is a pain you can only know first hand. When we are young we see through a glass darkly. As we grow older, life is not as big as we thought it was when it was all before us. Life in this flesh is quite temporary. I am not so old yet. Life is still precious. Death is still the enemy. I continue to cling to life, not only my own but to that of those I love. Yet, my clinging has changed.

Somewhere over the passing years I realized death was not the worst enemy. Grief over death stopped being the worst grief. I can now see just a tiny bit clearer through the dark glass.

Eternity is so eternal, so terribly final, so completely forever. Death is not final. By the grace of God it is not without hope. There is something yet beyond. Temporarily saying goodbye, even to a child, is still temporary. There will be a glad tomorrow. At the parting of death it is our own loss we grieve, not the child's, who has gone into the presence of God. But there is a loss into the darkness of eternity that is far more than the loss of temporary separation.

The older you get, the more you see the real enemy; you learn to recognize the real grief. It is not a temporary parting that brings apprehension, but knowledge of certain and eternal judgment awaiting your child. The pain of that rebellious child seeking a life of destruction is a thousand times more grievous than losing a baby. That mother I spoke of earlier, the one who lost her baby, suffered another, far greater loss years later. She lost her second son to the devil. Looking back, she now admits it was her own selfish grief and bitterness. It stole her joy, leaving her without a smile to nurture her living son. I heard her say 14 years after the death of her son, "It would have been easier to have also lost this one to death as a baby than

*"For now we see through a glass, darkly;
but then face to face: now I know in part;
but then shall I know even as also I am known."*

I Corinthians 13:12

to see what has become of him now.”

I remember when I carried my first child in my womb; I had waited for 3 years, and when I finally got pregnant I was the happiest person I had ever known. One day, as I practiced childbirth relaxation, God spoke to me. I believe He told me to give the child I was carrying to Him. I began to cry and beg God not to take the baby, all afternoon I wrestled with my own feelings and what I believed God wanted of me. Finally, in great grief I surrendered the child to God. As the days passed, I was totally thrilled and amazed that nothing happened. When the baby was born strong and healthy, I knew God had something bigger than what I had feared. Still, I saw through a glass darkly. Life and death were the only two “biggies” in my life.

Thereafter, as each child was conceived, I eagerly gave it to God. Throughout their childhood I had instincts just like every other mother. I would protect my children at any cost. Instinct, although an overwhelming feeling, is just instinct.

Even mother animals will die protecting their young. Oh, mother, if we as young mothers could just get a vision of something greater than instinct for our children, and begin to feel just as urgently for their souls, how different it would make us. Things that appear as tragedies are not so tragic. If as young mothers we could have eternity in our eyes.

If we could get a vision of something beyond instinct for our children, and begin to feel just as urgently for their souls, how different it would make us.

Older mothers, God-fearing mothers see more clearly. Whether it is age or spiritual maturity, I don't know—maybe both—but it is not for their lives we fear; it for their souls. We are still stirred to pray for their safety and health, but our consuming prayer is that they overcome all the snares and diversions this evil world can offer. Where once a mother begged God's protection for her child, she now begs Divine intervention at any cost (including life or limb). No, death is not your greatest enemy. Death brings a temporary sadness, a time of great loneliness, but in Christ there is always hope. Your greatest enemies are those vying for your child's soul.

People often ask me how I could ever let my daughter Rebekah go to the mountains of Papua New Guinea. What they don't understand is that I let Rebekah go years before when she was still in my womb. Yes, I have fears, but there is great hope. There is great joy. There is wonderful peace in knowing this is only temporary. I shall see her in a few months, or maybe in a few years, but most assuredly I will be with her again. There is no grief, there is no pain, there is only a glad tomorrow. Yes, I cry when she leaves, and I wander from room to room for a few weeks. When there is word she will return I clean and clean, and buy her clothes and talk and cry some more.

But, mother, what would it

Train your children to obey, raise them to love God, be real in the home...so much depends on it.

be like if she were to disappear from home, leaving in anger and rebellion? If I knew she left with a man I didn't like or respect. Weeks pass and there is no word, there is no hope. Grief? That is real grief. You think because they are grown you cease to feel? Death is such a simple thing compared to this grief. You lose a child to death, and everyone understands your sorrow and shares your pain. But lose a child to Satan's grip and you are an island alone, buffeted on every side with such turmoil, such pain, sleepless nights, exhausted prayer, and hopelessness. Grief? Only the older mother understands eternal grief. Only the older mother can look in the face of a young mother and say, train your children to obey, raise them to love God, be real in the home, so much depends on it.

When you are a young mother raising a family, it is so easy to care about your own feelings, your own hurts, your little fuss with your husband. Oh, but Mother, there is coming a day when your own feelings, hurts, and fusses will seem so immaterial, so silly. It is that atmosphere emanating from your relationship to your husband, your attitude and responses that help decide your baby's future in eternity. It is not your child training techniques; it is who you are today. It is how you respond to life's ups and downs and to life's grief and joy. It is how you honor your husband, thus how you honor God.

We go through life so protective of our children's bodies. Let us as mothers early look to the protection of their souls. The enemy is not death. The enemy is not outside, lurking to get in; the enemy is a mother's heart dedicated to a mother's feelings. It is our own selfishness, our own anger, our own bitterness, and our own disappointments. The enemy is Mother, doing what is right in her own eyes instead of obeying God. God, grant us the wisdom to get beyond instinct to the wisdom of true love. God, grant us hearts to see, to feel, and to live with eternity in our eyes.

“The Boy”

A classic we thought you'd enjoy! (Author unknown)

I remember a day one winter that stands out like a boulder in my life. The weather was unusually cold, our salary had not been regularly paid, and it did not meet our needs when it was. My husband was away much of the time, travelling from one district to another. Our boys were well, but my little Ruth was ailing, and at best none of us were decently clothed. I patched and re-patched, with spirits sinking to the lowest ebb. The water gave out in the well, and the wind blew through the cracks in the floor.

The people in the parish were kind and generous too; but the settlement was new, and each family was struggling for itself. Little by little, at the time I needed it most, my faith began to waver.

Early in life I was taught to take God at His word, and I thought my lesson was well learned, I had lived upon His promises in dark times, until I knew as David did, “who was my Fortress and Deliverer.” Now a daily prayer for forgiveness was all that I could offer.

My husband’s overcoat was hardly thick enough for October, and he was often obliged to ride miles to attend some meeting or funeral. Many times our breakfast was Indian cake, and a cup of tea without sugar. Christmas was coming; the children always expecting presents. I remember the ice was thick and smooth, and the boys were each craving a pair of skates. Ruth, in some unaccountable way, had taken a fancy that the dolls I had made were no longer suitable; she wanted a nice large one, and insisted on praying for it. I knew it seemed impossible, but oh! I wanted so very much to give the children the presents they each longed for. It seemed as if God had deserted us, but I did not tell my husband all this. He worked so earnestly and heartily. I supposed him to be as hopeful as ever. I kept the sitting room cheerful with an open fire and tried to serve our scanty meals as appealingly as I could.

*Little by little,
at the time I needed it most,
my faith began to waver.*

The morning before Christmas, James was called in to see a sick man. I put up a piece of bread for his lunch – it was the best I could do – wrapped my plaid shawl around his neck, and then tried to whisper a promise as I often had, but the words died away upon my lips. I let him go without it.

That was a dark, hopeless day. I coaxed the children to bed early, for I could not bear their talk. When Ruth went to bed, I listened to her prayer. She asked for the last time most explicitly for her doll, and for the skates for her brothers.

Her bright face looked so lovely when she whispered to me. “You know I think they’ll be here early tomorrow morning, Mama.” I thought then that I would move heaven and earth to save her from the disappointment. I sat down alone that night and gave way to the most bitter tears.

Before long James returned, chilled and exhausted. He drew off his boots: the thin stockings slipped off with them and his feet were red with cold.

I wouldn’t treat a dog this way, let alone a faithful servant!” I said bitterly. Then as I glanced up and saw the hard lines in his face and the look of despair, it flashed across me – James had let go, too.

I brought him a cup of tea, feeling sick and dizzy at the very thought. He took my hand and we sat for an hour without a word. I wanted to die and meet God, and tell Him His promise wasn’t true; my soul was so full of rebellious despair.

There came a sound of bells, a quick stop, and a loud knock at the door. James sprang up to open it. There stood Deacon White.

“A box came by express just before dark,” he said. “I brought it round as soon as I could get away. Reckon it might be for Christmas. ‘At any rate,’ I said, ‘they shall have it tonight.’ Here is a turkey my wife asked me to fetch along, and these other things I believe belong to you.”

There was a basket of potatoes and a bag of flour. Talking all the time, he carried in a box, and then, with a hearty goodnight, he rode away.

Still without speaking, James found a chisel and opened the box. He drew out first a thick red blanket, and saw that beneath was full of clothing. It seemed at that moment as if Christ fastened on me a look of reproach. James sat down and covered his face with his hands. “I cannot touch them,” he exclaimed;

*“Now my dear wife,” he said,
“let us thank God together.”*

“I haven’t been true, just when God was trying me to see if I could hold out. Do you think I could not see how you were suffering? And I had no word of comfort to offer. I know now how to preach the awfulness of turning from God.”

“James.” I said, clinging to him, “don’t take it to heart like this; I am to blame, I ought to have helped you. We will ask Him together to forgive us.”

“Wait a moment, dear, I cannot talk now,” he said, then he went into another room. I knelt down, and my heart broke; in an instant all the darkness, all the stubbornness rolled away. Jesus came again and stood before me, but with the loving words: “Daughter!”

Sweet promises of tenderness and joy flooded my soul. I was so lost in praise and gratitude that I forgot everything else. I don’t know how long it was before James came back, but I knew he, too, had found peace.

“Now my dear wife,” he said, “let us thank God together.” He then poured out words of praise; Bible words, for nothing else could express our thanksgiving.

It was 11 o’clock, the fire was low, and there was the great box, and nothing touched but the warm blanket we had so desperately needed. We piled on some fresh logs, lighted two candles, and began to examine our treasures.

We drew out an overcoat; I made James try it on. It was just the right size and I danced around him, for all my lightheartedness had returned.

There was a warm suit of clothes also, and three pairs of woolen hose. There was a dress for me, and yards of flannel; a pair of arctic overshoes for each of us, and in mine was a slip of paper. I have it now, and mean to hand it down to my children. It was Jacob's blessing to Asher, "Thy shoes shall be iron and brass, and as thy days, so shall thy strength be." In the gloves, evidently for James, the same dear hand had written, "I, the Lord thy God, will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, 'Fear not, I will help thee.'"

It was a wonderful box, and packed with thoughtful care. There was a suit of clothes for each of the boys and a little red gown for Ruth. There were mittens, scarves, and hoods; and down in the center, a box. We opened it and there was a great wax doll. I burst into tears again; James wept with me for the joy. It was too much; and then we both exclaimed again, for next we drew out two pairs of skates. There were books for us to read; some of them I had wished to see; stories for the children to read; aprons and underclothing; yards of ribbons; a lovely photograph; needles buttons and thread; and an envelope containing a ten-dollar gold piece.

At last we cried over everything we took up. It was past midnight, and we were faint and exhausted with happiness. I made a cup of tea, cut a fresh loaf of bread and James boiled some eggs. We drew up the table before the fire – how we enjoyed our supper! And then we sat talking over our life and how sure a help God always proved to be.

It was a wonderful box, and packed with thoughtful care.

You should have seen the children the next morning. The boys raised a shout at the sight of their skates. Ruth caught up her doll, and hugged it tightly without a word. Then she went into her room and knelt by her bed.

When she came back she whispered to me, "I knew it would be there, Mama, but I wanted to thank God just the same, you know."

"Look here, wife," cried James. We went to the window and there were the boys out of the house already, and skating on the ice with all their might.

My husband and I both tried to return thanks to the church in the East that sent us the box and have tried to return thanks unto God every day since.

Hard times have come again and again, but we have trusted in Him; dreading nothing so much as a doubt of His protecting care. Over and over again we have proved that, "They that seek the Lord shall not want any good thing." *

It's Time

In just a few years, the story you are about to read (pages 26-29) has been repeated in the lives of millions of people in over 40 different language groups.

In America families are buying cases of Good and Evil books and sending them to prisons. Every day we get stacks of letters from prisoners rejoicing that they have been forgiven. Many of these men continue to give the gospel to those behind bars.

Today in the Philippines, one such ex-prisoner goes to three schools each week giving the gospel message, showing a gospel film, and then giving out a handful of Good and Evil books. He unashamedly begs for more books, saying he could reach so many more teens if he only had more books available. We sent three church members over to visit him this fall, and they said the Muslim teenagers beg for the books because there is so little printed literature in their language. All three men felt we should make the sacrifice to have more Good and Evil books printed, since this man and his family are pouring out their lives in poor conditions to get the gospel out.

“Wherefore I say unto thee, Her sins, which are many, are forgiven; for she loved much” (Luke 7:47a).

Other families are taking Good and Evil to Interstate underpasses in cities like Dallas where new refugees gather to visit each other. People who speak other languages are, for the first time, hearing the wonderful gospel right here in the USA. One such

Each year, the U.S. government pays organizations to bring up to 70,000 refugees to the U.S., coming from countries like Burma, Kenya, Bangladesh, Korea, and tribal groups.

These refugees are an unreached people. Ft. Worth, Texas is one of 8 cities which relocates refugees.

The Baldings in Dallas, TX family that goes to these new refugees is reaching so many people, they are frustrated that they have to take precious time out to go to work every day. They wish they could spend all day—every day—giving out Good and Evil books and sharing other literature with these people groups. They are full-time missionaries while being just plain-old folks trying to make a living. Anyone looking for a missionary to support? I would recommend this family. You could offer to have the Good and Evil books printed to reach whatever language group they are working with. Eternal dividends guaranteed.

Our ministry could never have gone beyond these hills of Tennessee without help. But God started a ball rolling almost 20 years ago by having Mike, an unknown nobody, write a simple child training book. With one advertisement, we became international authors. You KNOW that was God. Then a few years later we wrote a book on marriage that went viral, and suddenly we had money to use in missions. God reached down to the least of us and gave us a vision of reaching the entire world with his message of salvation. It was a huge task. It took seven years, and the devil fought us every step of the way. But now we are gaining momentum. Prisons are being transformed from bloody repositories of the worst of humanity to places where gospel songs ring from every cell. Entire people groups have the message. In once-closed nations, people who had never heard the name of Jesus are now sitting cross-legged at the doors of their huts, listening to Good and Evil being read while carefully studying the pictures. His name is being proclaimed and glorified.

This vision of reaching the world with written missionaries can no longer be sustained by NGJ. It has grown too large. God gave us the command to “Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.” You can make this happen by giving to get a new language in print, by reprinting where there is a need, or by taking the gospel message yourself to someone who has never heard. It’s time to join the fight. ✨

NGJ's Mission Story – taken from GOOD & EVIL

IN 1999, SOME CHRISTIANS WHO WERE CONCERNED THAT SOME HAD NEVER HEARD THE GOOD NEWS GOT TOGETHER AND DISCUSSED HOW THEY COULD SEND THE GOOD NEWS TO THE MANY DIFFERENT LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD.

THEY DECIDED THE BEST APPROACH WAS TO MAKE A PICTURE BOOK THAT TOLD THE BIBLE STORY IN A WAY THAT ALL COULD UNDERSTAND.

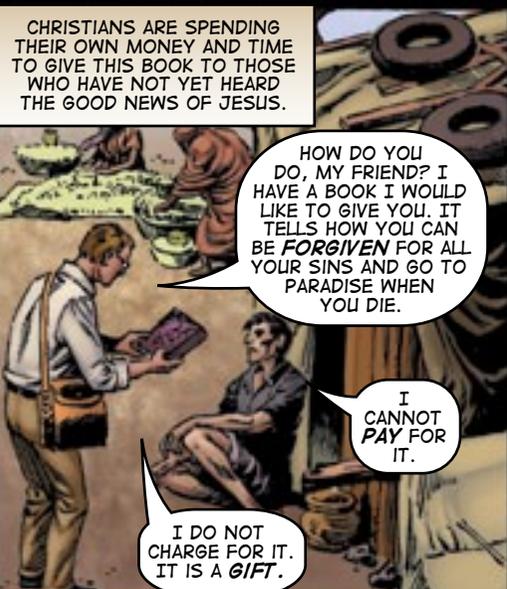

AFTER WRITING THE TEXT, THEY FOUND DANNY BULANADI, ONE OF THE WORLD'S LEADING COMIC BOOK ARTISTS, AND CONTRACTED HIM TO DRAW THE PICTURES.

IT TOOK OVER SEVEN YEARS TO WRITE, DRAW AND PRODUCE THIS BOOK.

IT IS NOW BEING TRANSLATED AND DISTRIBUTED IN MANY LANGUAGES AROUND THE WORLD – PAID FOR BY CONCERNED CHRISTIANS.

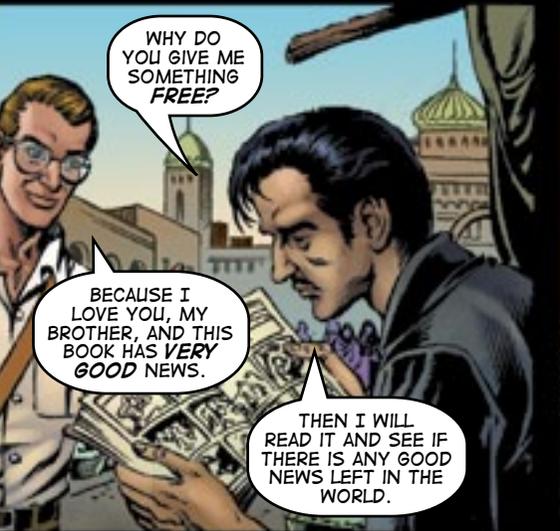

CHRISTIANS ARE SPENDING THEIR OWN MONEY AND TIME TO GIVE THIS BOOK TO THOSE WHO HAVE NOT YET HEARD THE GOOD NEWS OF JESUS.

HOW DO YOU DO, MY FRIEND? I HAVE A BOOK I WOULD LIKE TO GIVE YOU. IT TELLS HOW YOU CAN BE FORGIVEN FOR ALL YOUR SINS AND GO TO PARADISE WHEN YOU DIE.

I CANNOT PAY FOR IT.

I DO NOT CHARGE FOR IT. IT IS A GIFT.

WHY DO YOU GIVE ME SOMETHING FREE?

BECAUSE I LOVE YOU, MY BROTHER, AND THIS BOOK HAS VERY GOOD NEWS.

THEN I WILL READ IT AND SEE IF THERE IS ANY GOOD NEWS LEFT IN THE WORLD.

THE NEXT DAY.

MY RELIGION NEVER TOLD ME ANYTHING LIKE THIS. THIS IS LOVE AND FORGIVENESS.

I KNOW IT IS TRUE! I HAVE SINNED AGAINST GOD, BUT HE SENT HIS SON TO DIE FOR MY SINS! HOW AMAZING AND WONDERFUL!

DEAR JESUS,
THANK YOU FOR LOVING ME AND FOR DYING IN MY PLACE.
I WANT TO FOLLOW
YOU THE REST OF MY LIFE.

I AM
FORGIVEN!
GOD NOW LIVES IN ME!

WIFE, A MOST WONDERFUL THING HAS HAPPENED, A MAN I HAVE NEVER SEEN GAVE ME THIS BOOK. IT TELLS THE STORY OF HOW GOD CAME TO THE EARTH AS A MAN AND PUT AWAY OUR SINS.

WILL YOU
READ IT TO US,
MOHAMED?

CAN I READ IT PAPA?
CAN I?

THE PART
ABOUT ABRAHAM
AND MOSES, WE ALREADY KNEW, BUT THE WRITINGS OF OUR RELIGION NEVER TOLD US
THE REST OF THE STORY.
GOD SENT HIS SON
JESUS TO SHED HIS BLOOD AND PAY FOR OUR SINS.

CAN WOMEN
BE FORGIVEN AND ACCEPTED INTO GOD'S FAMILY JUST LIKE MEN?

YES. JESUS
WELCOMES ALL.

OTHERS SAW THE PEACE THAT HAD COME TO THE ROAILL
FAMILY AND CAME TO HEAR
THIS WONDERFUL NEWS.

THIS IS INDEED WONDERFUL
NEWS. I WILL BRING
MY FAMILY TO HEAR ALSO.

SOON MOHAMED HAD READ
NEARLY EVERYONE IN HIS VILLAGE. BUT MOHAMED
WANTED TO KNOW MORE.

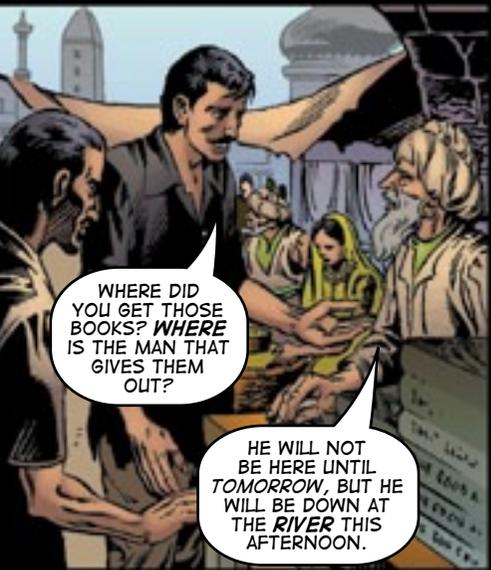

MOHAMED, I HAVE HEARD THIS STORY BEFORE. THERE IS A MAN WHO COMES TO THE MARKET ONCE A WEEK AND SPEAKS OF THIS JESUS. ONE DAY WHEN I WAS WALKING BY THE RIVER, I SAW HIM BAPTIZING SOME OTHERS IN THE RIVER, JUST LIKE IT SAID IN THE BOOK.

I MUST GO AND SEE THIS MAN. TAKE ME TO WHERE YOU HAVE SEEN HIM.

WE HAVE BEEN HERE THREE DAYS AND HAVE NOT SEEN HIM. SHOULDN'T WE GO BACK HOME?

I MUST FIND HIM.

WHERE DID YOU GET THOSE BOOKS? WHERE IS THE MAN THAT GIVES THEM OUT?

HE WILL NOT BE HERE UNTIL TOMORROW, BUT HE WILL BE DOWN AT THE RIVER THIS AFTERNOON.

THERE THEY ARE!

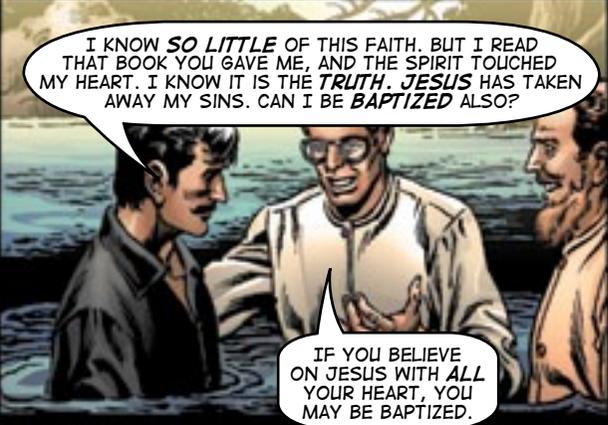

I BAPTIZE YOU, MY SISTER, IN THE NAME OF OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST.

IS THERE ANYONE ELSE HERE TODAY THAT HAS BELIEVED ON THE LORD JESUS CHRIST, AND YOU WOULD LIKE TO OBEY HIM IN BELIEVER'S BAPTISM? COME DOWN INTO THE WATER.

I READ OF THIS IN THE BOOK. IT IS WHAT BELIEVERS IN JESUS DO TO SHOW THAT THEIR OLD LIFE IS PASSED AWAY AND THEY NOW HAVE A NEW LIFE IN JESUS. I MUST FOLLOW JESUS.

I KNOW SO LITTLE OF THIS FAITH. BUT I READ THAT BOOK YOU GAVE ME, AND THE SPIRIT TOUCHED MY HEART. I KNOW IT IS THE TRUTH. JESUS HAS TAKEN AWAY MY SINS. CAN I BE BAPTIZED ALSO?

IF YOU BELIEVE ON JESUS WITH ALL YOUR HEART, YOU MAY BE BAPTIZED.

I AM SO HAPPY FOR YOU.

GOD IS SO GOOD.

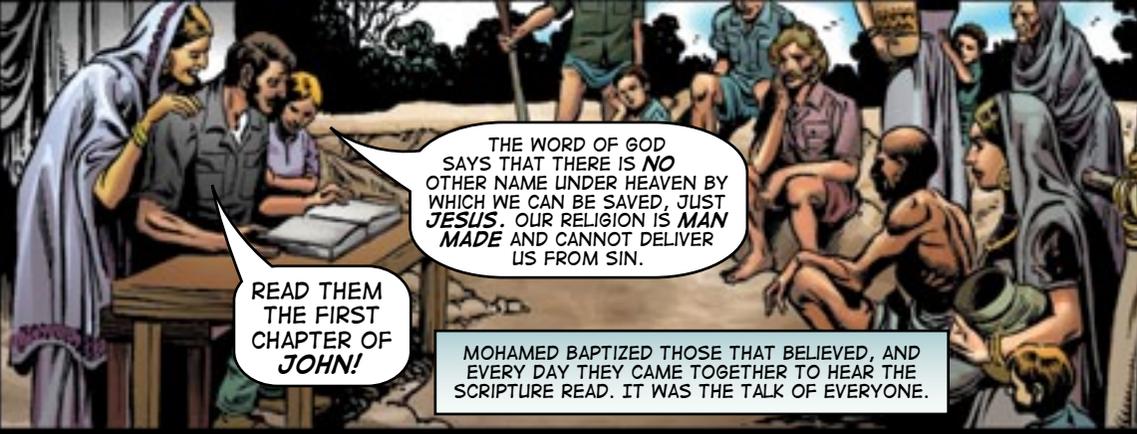

THAT BOOK I GAVE YOU WITH ALL THE PICTURES IS JUST A SMALL PART OF THE STORY. THIS BOOK I GIVE YOU IS THE VERY WORDS OF GOD.

TAKE IT AND READ IT EVERY DAY. YOU WILL LEARN MUCH OF JESUS AND OF GOD'S LOVE AND GRACE.

A REAL BIBLE?

MOHAMED STUDIED HIS BIBLE EVERY NIGHT. HE WAS AMAZED AT THE WONDERFUL THINGS IT HAD TO SAY. OTHERS CAME TO HEAR HIM READ.

THE WORD OF GOD SAYS THAT THERE IS NO OTHER NAME UNDER HEAVEN BY WHICH WE CAN BE SAVED. JUST JESUS. OUR RELIGION IS MAN MADE AND CANNOT DELIVER US FROM SIN.

READ THEM THE FIRST CHAPTER OF JOHN!

MOHAMED BAPTIZED THOSE THAT BELIEVED, AND EVERY DAY THEY CAME TOGETHER TO HEAR THE SCRIPTURE READ. IT WAS THE TALK OF EVERYONE.

And this story is being repeated in the lives of hundreds of thousands...

* GALATIANS

Many professing Christians who don't have a personal relationship with Christ are seeking meaning in Rabbinical Judaism, keeping feast days and Sabbaths, and resorting to using Hebrew words for God and Jesus. Many are "falling from grace" in their attempt to give the law of Moses a place in their daily lives. God gave us the book of Galatians to answer this ancient and now modern heresy.

Dear NGJ, Thank you for the big print Bible you sent me. I'll be able to read it every day. – Lewis

2012 Fiscal Year-End Review

By Mel Cohen, CFP, RFC, General Manager

Our fiscal year ended on June 30, 2012. Our total income for the year was $1,449,439 (unaudited) of which $402,518 were contributions, with the balance being sales, royalties, and interest income. Our annual, independent CPA firm audit has already begun.

Each major component of our sources of income is down from the previous fiscal year. Our income from sales was down about $107,000, and our contributions were down $106,000. Like many other ministries, we are feeling the financial crunch that has personally affected many of our readers and contributors.

Last fiscal year we had expenses over revenue of $240,000. Due to the drastic cuts in almost every conceivable expense, we greatly improved this all-important category despite receiving less income than the previous fiscal year. Our expenses over revenue this year were $60,000, an improvement of $180,000 despite less income. Our goal this year is to minister as much as we can with the resources God provides to us through sales of our material and the generous contributions of about 1,000 of our followers.

The publishing industry of which we are a part is changing rapidly. There are between 1.5 million and 2 million books per year being published. The competition has never been greater. E-book sales have grown exponentially; online sales are a major component of our business. We are continually shifting our focus to where the action is in publishing.

Our concern is not how our accounting works out; our goals are worldwide evangelism and to minister to families in the U.S. and abroad. Once our overhead is accounted for, every available dollar we receive goes to ministry. Designated donations go 100% to the designated area, without regard for our overhead. We continue to operate NGJ at maximum efficiency.

Our single largest ministry expense is the Good and Evil Project. We continue to release new language translations every month. By December, we expect to release the full Good and Evil animation DVD set. This is being created with evangelism in mind. We are creating this so missionary groups can convert these DVDs to their language in a very efficient way. This method creates extra production time and expense, but within a year after its release it should be available in over 25 languages.

We appreciate your strong support of our ministry through your sacrificial giving and the purchase of our products. If you have any questions regarding our finances or want to know how you can help, please contact me directly at mcohen@nogreaterjoy.org or call me at 931-593-2484. ✨

Editor's Note: Mel is a certified financial planner and a registered financial consultant with over thirty years of corporate and personal experience in finances. If you have any questions regarding our ministry's finances, be sure to contact Mel.
