...And a little child shall lead them

by Debi Pearl

Over the many years we have been in ministry, I have taken note of the children who have passed away early. So many were spoken of as unusually kind, loving, forgiving, praying . . . just kids with a certain divine touch. MOST of the children that I knew who died young were indeed different. Maybe you are a parent who lost a child and can identify with what I am saying.

This has made me think there is more to life and death than we know. The Bible says, "For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known" (1 Corinthians 13:12).

God's Word tells us what we need to know in order to know God, be forgiven, and walk in holiness. But God has been around for all eternity, long before us. There has been a magnificent history of creations and worlds of which we know only a little. There are a few things hinted at in Scripture that we can wonder about. One of those things is what happens in the future to the aborted babies and children who die early before having an opportunity to choose to love God. From God's Word we know that he would not just turn them into little angels; a living soul will have the opportunity to decide their destiny.

When you think about it, God created the first living soul—an eternal being. Then he took a part of that living soul and made woman. All other living souls have emanated from that first couple, man and woman coming together to fashion another living, eternal soul. Eternal souls can't cease to exist.

Zechariah 8:5 speaks of life in the Millennium: "And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof."

What children? Why so many? Where do they come from? Where are their families?

Knowing God, knowing other passages addressing the same subject, and knowing that eternal souls are, in fact, eternal, I think it is clear that these little people who died before coming to an age of accountability will be raised in natural bodies to grow up during the Millennium. Some of these children whose parents were saved may well be raised by their own parents. I will be delighted to see parents reunited with their little ones.

But what about the others, the children who were ripped from their mother's womb? Who will raise these little ones? I think adoption will be at its peak during the Kingdom years. I believe parents will open their homes for a thousand years as children will grow up to 100 years of age, at which time they will be judged. "There shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man that hath not filled his days: for the child shall die an hundred years old; but the sinner being an hundred years old shall be accursed" (Isaiah 65:20). We know that the millennial inhabitants will live the entire 1000 years in their glorified bodies. So who is the 100-year-old “child” and the sinner who at 100 is cursed? It appears that the child who reaches 100 will die and receive his glorified body or he will die and be cursed—damned—depending on his heart condition after 100 years on the earth. There will be a huge number of individuals who grow to maturity in the Millennium that will stand against God at the end of the age and be damned (Revelation 20:7-15).

I think I know why. I believe God is storing up an army of children to be helpers during the Millennium. I want to take the hands of the grieving parents and say, “Just a short while and you will be holding him in your arms and singing hymns, and you will watch as he leads the other children—the ones no one wanted, to come to know and love Jesus.

Now, we see through a glass darkly. We trust God has our best in

WHY? WHY DID GOD TAKE MY CHILD?

I think I know why!

Pure speculation.

So, how about those unusually loving children born to righteous parents who die in their youth—or in the womb? I believe these children will grow up during the Millennium with the aborted babies, BUT God needs leaders among the children. I think these exceptional children may be chosen to grow up with the other kids and be leaders to guide them to faith in Jesus. A child can reach a child better than an adult. I can’t help but speculate every time I hear an inconsolably grieved parent ask, “WHY?” Why did God allow this child who is part of a really godly family to suddenly drown, come down with cancer, die of heart disease, or be killed in an accident? Why?

mind. God is glorified by your heart of love and joy in trusting him. And soon, very soon, we will all find out if I am right. You know you think I am. For Jesus said, “Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven” (Matthew 19:14).

“Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you, That in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven” (Matthew 18:10).

You grieve for your loss, but our Heavenly Father never lets them out of his sight.

“The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them.” Isaiah 11:6

I HATE THAT PROPHET!

by Michael & Debi Pearl

Did you know that most of the Bible is prophecy? A prophecy foretells the future. A prophet is someone who hears from God as to the future. The prediction could be in the lifetime of the hearers or thousands of years in the future. There are over 250 prophecies of the coming of Jesus Christ found in the Old Testament. There were a few prophecies of Christ's lineage and birth and his ministry, but most are about his being rejected, crucified, and raised from the dead. Many are about his coming triumph and reign. With all those clear prophecies describing the life and death of Christ you would think that the Jewish scholars would have recognized Jesus was the one they prayed would come. But no one seems to take prophecies as reality.

In the Old Testament, 17 books are basically all prophecy. Books like Daniel are about what is happening in Daniel's life and times, but much of Daniel's life is about his prophecies of end times. Daniel started getting words from God as a teenager, and most of his early prophecies were about his own life and the life of his masters. For those who are interested in end times, the book of Daniel works hand in hand with the book of Revelation. Ezekiel has some interesting things to say about UFOs and other alien life. Jeremiah does too.

What is interesting to me is that no prophet is appreciated in his time. When he predicts something bad is going to happen, no one believes him, and when it does happen, well, then it is his fault for predicting it.

It is crazy how people think the prophet was somehow responsible by just telling what was going to happen. Prophets almost never have anything glorious or wonderful to prophecy. It sure would be a better job if they could tell people, "Hey, if you stop looking at porn then God will bless you with a great paying job that you really love and your wife will love you." Or you could tell a nation, "If you vote for this guy he will turn the whole country into a clean, safe, happy place." But it doesn't work that way.

Basically, being a prophet is not a job of honor or fame. All through the ages prophets have had a very hard time: killed, thrown in sewage pits, starved, had nervous breakdowns, had to preach to people who murdered their own family, had their loving wife killed and not allowed to show any sorrow, and so many other horrible things you can't even imagine.

The prophets on YouTube are quite different from the biblical prophets. Sometimes I laugh when I watch them. I think they must watch each other so they can all predict what most news commentators are already predicting. I do see the real deal on occasion, but rarely. Mike says, the words they "received from God" indicate God watches the news.

Here is an interesting story of a prophet named Micaiah, found in 2 Chronicles 18. The two kings of Israel (north and south were divided) made an alliance to go to war together against Syria. One king was Ahab. You might remember that his beloved nasty wife was Jezebel. We all know about her. If you remember, the dogs ate her after she was pushed out of a window by her own servants—as was prophesied. But that's another story for later.

King Ahab obviously feared God because he told King Jehoshaphat they needed to ask for a word from the LORD as to whether they would win if they did go to war with King Ramothgilead. They gathered together 400 prophets, and all 400 agreed that they would win a glorious victory. Hmm, do you think they might have been watching the same news channel? Keep in mind these guys are known prophets. King Jehoshaphat had enough sense to question whether they were really hearing from God. He asked King Ahab if there were any other prophets available. This is King Ahab's answer: "There is yet one man, by whom we may enquire of the LORD: but I hate him; for he never prophesied good unto me, but always evil.." This prophet must be the real deal since he is properly hated. Someone was sent to find the hated prophet, but while they waited, the other 400 prophets were eager to share their divine word.

The two kings sat in a special room listening as the 400 prophets came before them sharing their positive words. One prophet had made a fancy piece of art—horns of iron. He displayed his horns and said, “With these horns thou shalt push Syria until they be consumed.” Quite a display of confidence. The other prophets agreed saying, “Go up to Ramothgi-lead and prosper: for the LORD shall deliver it into the hand of the king.” A true “word of faith” minister.

The messenger finally located the prophet Micaiah and forewarned him that since all the other prophets agreed the kings would win, he should do likewise. A little political peer pressure always helps. This guy was not up for sale though; you can tell by his response: “As the LORD liveth, even what my God saith, that will I speak.” Micaiah was not only a prophet, he also had a sense of humor, so when he was brought up before the kings he said, no doubt in the tone and manner of the 400 parrot prophets, “Go ye up, and prosper, and they shall be delivered into your hand.” His mockery was well noted by King Ahab. The king shouted, “How many times shall I adjure thee that thou say nothing but the truth to me in the name of LORD?” Prophet Micaiah was known for this type of mockery. I assume Ahab was disgusted with the whole scene and

Years ago when Michael was teaching through the book of Revelation, he painted an eight-foot canvas depicting the events described by John. It has been reproduced on thick poster paper, 18" high by 39" long and can be used for personal or group Bible study. If you always thought the book of Revelation was a mystery and too hard to understand, now is your opportunity to approach it in a way that makes it easy to study.

This popular commentary is a careful word-for-word examination of the most important book in the Bible, addressing the hard theological issues that have been the foundation of the Christian faith down through the centuries.

Prophet Micaiah soberly answered Ahab, "I did see all Israel scattered upon the mountains, as sheep that have no shepherd: and the LORD said, These have no master; let them return therefore every man to his house in peace."

In keeping with the way REAL prophecies are received, King Ahab said to King Jehoshaphat, "Did I not tell thee that he would not prophesy good unto me, but evil?"

The true prophet was not finished. He wanted them to know about what happened in heaven to cause 400 prophets to lie. "Therefore hear the word of the LORD; I saw the LORD sitting upon his throne, and all the host of heaven standing on his right hand and on his left. And the LORD said, Who shall entice Ahab king of Israel, that he may go up and fall at Ramothgilead? And one spake saying after this manner, and another saying after that manner. Then came out a spirit, and stood before the LORD, and said, I will entice him. And the LORD said unto him, Wherewith? And he said, I will go out, and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets. And the LORD said, Thou shalt entice him, and thou shalt also prevail: go out, and do even so. Now therefore, behold, the LORD hath put a lying spirit in the mouth of these thy prophets, and the LORD hath spoken evil against thee."

Every once in a while in the Bible God allows his prophet a glimpse of what goes on in heaven. This particular scene is revealing. God asked for someone to come up with a plan that would totally convince both kings to go to battle. God still had his rightful prophet, but he needed all the king's prophets to be deceived. A couple other heavenly beings of God came up with ideas, but they were vetoed. Then another of God's soldiers that was stationed in heaven came up with the best idea. He said, "I will be a lying spirit." Nothing like a lying spirit to bring confusion. Much goes on in God's war room that we know nothing about. You wonder why our leaders seem to be so ridiculously dumb . . . maybe God has sent a bunch of lying spirits to them. Back to our story.

“As the LORD liveth, even what my God saith, that will I speak.”
2 Chronicles 18:13

You can read it for yourself. It ends as expected. And as predicted the real prophet was thrown in prison and fed really bad food. If he had lived in these modern times people would say that God would take care of his real prophets and not let such deception occur. Maybe people today should rethink what they think about God.

The two kings did go into battle. King Ahab had enough fear of what the prophet of God had said that he disguised himself to look like an ordinary soldier so the enemy wouldn't single him out. But when God speaks, a disguise doesn't help. Verse 33 of chapter 18 in 2 Chronicles says, "And a certain man drew a bow at a venture [shooting at nothing in particular], and smote the king of Israel between the joints of the harness . . ." It was the first divinely guided missile, finding its way into the narrow crack where the armor was joined together. No getting away from God. There was total defeat just as the prophet said.

God's prophet did get set free and prophesied again, negative stuff as usual. Par for a prophet's course, then and now. ■

Child Training in 2022

by Karen Sargent

I have recently had a few conversations with young parents about child raising, and one thought keeps coming to mind.

You have 18 years to train your children to make wise decisions. If you haven't done it by then, it is too late. Children are not trained at 18 or 25 or 30; training must take place long before then. If your child gets to 18 and is in the habit of making poor choices, another two (or four or ten) years at home is not going to solve the problem. At that point the child is an adult and will have to learn the hard way.

I certainly did not do everything right as a mom; ask my children and they will tell you about it. So what's a parent to do? I have only two pieces of advice.

First, when your children are newborns—no, before they are even born—ask yourself what you want them to be as adults. Make a list and post it in the house where you will see it every day, then you become that. Begin with the end in mind. God says “Better is the end of a thing than the beginning thereof” (Eccl. 7:8), so you need to know what you want the end to look like.

Put your phone down, turn the radio and TV off; be a parent

Do you want your child to be compassionate, slow to anger, full of good will, obedient, a hard worker, selfless, a soul winner? Be those things. Remember that “more is caught than taught.” Your children will be who you are, but in multiples. What a scary thought! Be what you want them to be.

Second, listen more than you speak. I once asked my children what was the best thing I did as a mother, and without missing a beat, one said I listened well and another said I didn’t freak out when they came to me with a hard question or in repentance for a wrong done. The best way to keep your children from ever talking to you is to explode when they do. If you step on a land mine, you won’t go in that field again. Children are smart enough to learn from experience whether they will find a listening ear in you or not. If you want them to come to you with the big stuff in their teen s, you’d better listen to the little stuff when they’re toddlers. Communication is a habit formed over the years.

Have a little one sit on the bed while you are folding laundry and let them yammer away. Make eye contact. Smile. Be interested. Pull a chair up to the sink and let your child rinse while you wash, and see what great conversation you have.

When my children were young, we lived almost an hour from town. We had some amazing talks in the van. Seize your opportunities. Make the most of your time.

Put your phone down, turn the radio and TV off; be a parent.

Nothing I’ve said here is new. It is the same old thing said in the same old way. There is nothing new under the sun. Just like 6,000 years ago, it takes time, energy, and attention to train up a child in the way he should go, but if you do that, when he is old, he won’t depart from it. ■

Michael and Debi Pearl tell how they successfully trained up their five children with love, humor, the rod, and a King James Bible.

WHAT'S THAT STINK?

by Debi Pearl

A few years ago (before Mike took on a more socially accepted demeanor) we pulled into the parking lot of our local country store just as an old friend drove up beside us. We got out of our vans and began to visit while her two children, about 4 and 6, crawled out of the back seat. Both kids started tugging on their mama's arm, whining for ice cream. Their behavior was surprisingly way out of character from how she had raised her five older children. I couldn't help but notice Mike's sudden stiffening as he sniffed the air like a coon dog on the hunt. A very nasty odor came from the interior of the vehicle as the kids climbed out. Our friend, whom I will call Brenda, noticed Mike's sniffing response as well. She hastily began to dig in her purse, quickly pulling out a five-dollar bill and shoving it at her 6-year-old daughter. "Take Frankie and pick out what you want."

While she was purse digging, Mike, being his usual frank self, said, "What's that disgusting stink?"

He knew quite well what the foul odor was. It was sewage emanating from the almost-4-year-old boy with droopy britches. Frowning, Big Papa looked down from his large 6-foot-5-inch frame at the little kid. "Boy, don't tell me a kid old enough to shoot a gun is still dumping in his pants!"

The boy frowned as he grabbed the five-dollar bill from his peevish sister and waddled as fast as his fat legs and heavy diaper could take him up the steps and into the store.

Brenda is a spitfire, so I knew a flame was coming. I wanted to trail up the steps behind the stinker, but the stench was too much to bear. The tiny mama almost spit, "Mike Pearl, don't you ever try to shame my son! You mind your own business!" Her demanding, authoritarian tone could stymie an impending assailant, but not Mike. If you have read my book Created to Be His Help Meet, you will know about the three types of people created in God's three-part image: Father (kingly), Son (priestly and steady), and Holy Spirit (visionary). Brenda has all the makings of an extreme King and so does Mike. Me, I'm a chicken.

Mike stared at Brenda like she had lost her mind. "That half-grown kid dumping in his pants doesn't need any help from me. He has clearly already shamed himself, and do you think this NOSE on my face is not my business? What happened to you, Brenda? I watched you when you raised five good, self-disciplined, self-restrained, self-respecting kids, and now these two last kids are fat whiners, AND your 4-year-old son still dumping in his pants!"

Brenda was loaded for bear, and she had obviously found one. "He's NOT 4. He will not turn 4 until next month. Besides, I have learned a few things, AND I am willing to admit that I made mistakes with my older children by being too hard on them. I can see why my oldest daughter has emotional issues and bitterness toward me. I have learned that it is wiser to allow the children to develop at their own speed. I am following the new school of thought called Loving Touches."

Mike was shaking his head and looking disgusted. "You're kidding. I know all about that new nonsense and it goes against what God says in Scripture and against common sense. How can YOU possibly fall for that and expect God to bless your family? Even the world knows better than that. All professionals agree that self-restraint must be developed in the early years. In ten years these two kids will have health issues from being overweight, AND you are letting it happen with your so-called 'loving touches.' Self-discipline saves people from all kinds of struggles."

SELF-DISCIPLINE SAVES PeOple FROM ALL KINDS OF StruGgLeS

The fMRI had not been developed when this conversation occurred, but if it had been, Mike could have told her that secular science teaches that the brain establishes what is called “executive functions” at a very early age, and a highly developed executive function leads to diligence, hard work, self-restraint from food, drugs, sex—all immediate lust—and more. There are many negative life issues that come from not having developed self-discipline and self-restraint early in life. Clearly self-discipline contributes to a good self-image.

Mike picked up his conversation with Brenda. “You know that I KNOW that grown daughter of yours has bitterness due to your own rebellion toward your husband in the early years of your marriage.” Mike does have a way of getting to the nitty-gritty. I couldn’t help grinning in memory of Brenda’s hard-headed early days, but I felt his response to her was kind as well as firm, “You were a tough wife to deal with, but I gotta hand it to you, you did learn how to honor your man based on God’s will and not your own. So now please don’t let guilt cause you to lose your way as a tiger mama.”

Clearly Brenda knew she had hit a brick wall and was not going to intimidate Mike into believing the “soft love” way of raising kids. I have to add here that her older children had contacted us several times and asked us to talk to their mom about the younger children and her newly discovered “gentle parenting” nonsense. It had been a while since they had contacted us. Mike was patient and waited until God set up the perfect opportunity. So, like Brenda, he was primed (having read the new silly book) and ready to shoot until he won the war.

What is sad is that Brenda knew everyone thought her two younger children were brats. The grown siblings had told us that there was often a fight at home due to the two younger kids being lazy and not expected to do any chores, plus they were disobedient and even on occasion really mean. They were treated to “loving” instruction rather than overdue spankings. It caused a lot of animosity in the older siblings who were forced to live with the spoiled brats. The older siblings told us that they didn’t even like the younger ones and were embarrassed to be seen with them. Brenda was continually reminding her older children that to honor God they must love their siblings, but teens don’t live lies like adults do.

Brenda could see the writing on the wall so she told Mike, “Let’s agree to disagree.” She smiled trying to bring peace to their discord. “It was still good to see you doing so well.”

Mike shook his head at Brenda, “No, Brenda, you are too good of a friend to pretend all is well. Be mad if you want to, but know this: what you are doing to your younger kids is against God’s written Word and it will return evil for the family.”

All is well that ends well. Alas, this did not end very well. Brenda did finally let go of the foolish gentle parenting ideas, but what had NOT been established in the brains of the two younger ones caused them to grow up dealing with health issues. Mike’s ten-year prophecy was fulfilled to the letter and it didn’t take a prophet to see it coming.

My book Create a Better Brain through Neuroplasticity shows how the brain develops (it can be seen on fMRIs) and what we as parents can do to build into our children the self-reliance that makes them lead ers, movers and shakers, confident to charge ahead, and with a good self-imagine. Some people go through life never having to struggle with overeating, drugs, or being lazy. It is because their brain was patterned to self-restraint. Self-restraint comes as naturally to them as not jumping off a high roof. Obviously this isn’t the whole of child training, but it is an essential part.

CLEARLY SELF-DISCIPLINE ConTRIBUteS TO A GOOD SelF-Image

Please don’t get me wrong; a person can be a great human who is loving, kind, and patient without ever developing any self-discipline in his youth. He can be such fine person that everyone really likes him, but deep inside he will FEEL the downward pull, causing him struggles that he didn’t have to have if only his parents had built in him strong habits of self-denial and duty. As a parent, you can help your children have a healthier, happier, and more successful life by setting executive functions into place. My book teaches you how. It gets 5 stars on Amazon. # the Hmong People

...NOT FORGOTTEN

by Debi Pearl

In the early 2000s, there was an international humanitarian crisis among a little-known people, the Hmong. (You can read more about their history here on Wikipedia: ngj.org/hmong-people also on Hmong American Center: ngj.org/hmong-history).

The Hmong people are originally from southern China, where overlords targeted them for genocide. This led to mass migration into

North Vietnam and Laos. After World War II, the British drew new dividing lines for countries in several areas of the world. The map makers forgot the Hmong people, so they were left wanderers in unwelcoming lands. Hoping for help from the USA to restore their country, they fought bravely for America during the Vietnam War but when we left, we abandoned them. The Viet Cong were not forgiving, but the Hmong did not give up easily. They were constantly warring and moving from country to country trying to preserve their nation and culture, keep their own language, and teach their children. It was this constant conflict that caused the Cambodian government to finally try to eliminate the Hmong.

In 2005, thousands of Hmong men, women, and children were unexpectedly taken from their homes in Cambodia, loaded into buses, and taken across the border into Thailand. They were pushed off the buses onto a mountainside in the middle of nowhere. They had only the clothes on their backs.

Within days, missionary Tom Gaudet, who had been helping us with translations for the Good and Evil book, heard that 7,000 people were up in the mountains starving. Tom's calling is publishing the gospel. He is not called to humanitarian needs, short-term mission trips, orphanages, schools, or even preaching. He was called to publish the gospel. But he drove the treacherous mountain roads to see for himself whether what he had heard was true.

Tom is very focused on his particular calling, so when he contacted us and asked for money to buy rice we knew this was a real catastrophe; people were starving. None of the world humanitarian organizations were helping as of yet. We immediately wired money. Within hours Tom delivered rice. The people ran to get large bags of rice, but there was not nearly enough. For weeks we sent money and Tom drove back and forth delivering as much rice as quickly as he could.

We contacted our missionary TJ Slayman, who was serving in Laos as a translator, and told him to take his family and go live under a blue tarp on the side of the mountain and teach the Hmong people about Jesus. It was certainly not a fun trip or a stirring short-term mission, and he didn't jump for joy, but he went. To say God GREATLY blessed the ministry he had while in the Hmong camp is like saying Niagara Falls is a cute water feature.

Since the men had no work, they had plenty of time to study the Bible. You can see in the picture the Hmong men intently studying the Bible together.

In order to make a little money to help feed their families, the women in the camp used material the missionary brought them to embroider Mike's Revelation poster. The young woman you see in this picture was just 10 years old at the time, but Kham (TJ's wife) said the little girl helped sew the Revelation banners.

After many months of extreme hardship, the Hmong people were finally allowed to disperse. These now-faithful men of God and preachers of the gospel scattered all over Cambodia, Laos, and other countries. What man meant for evil, God meant for good.

TJ's wife, Kham, grew up in Laos with many Hmong neighbors. You can read her story of growing up in fear of them here: ngj.org/what-god-can-do

Many close to Kham suffered loss and some even death due to the Hmong's resistance. Yet when her husband, TJ, was called to go teach Jesus to the Hmong, Kham willingly went to serve alongside him.

After long months of living in the camp, TJ and Kham returned to their ministry in Laos and with them went a young Hmong girl who helped embroider the Revelation banners. While this sweet little girl was growing up, there was a young man living in California (whose mother is Cambodian) whom God called to go to Cambodia to serve as a missionary. He faithfully served eight years as a single man until he met and married this sweet Hmong girl.

That's another story you can read here: ngj.org/hmong-relief.

This young couple stopped by at No Greater Joy recently but will soon be returning to Cambodia to spread the gospel again. God had a plan—a long-term, wonderful plan.

The British forgot the Hmong, the USA abandoned them, the Viet Cong hated and murdered them, and Cambodia tried to eliminate them, but God had his eye on them, loving, planning, and preparing a way for them to hear the gospel.

This is not the rest of the story . . . it is just the beginning. ■
